

“The Citadel is a place of pride and tradition. A place where the standards are high, the discipline is strong, and leaders are born. The men, and now women, of this institution represent a sense of honor and accomplishment. And I am proud to be with you today.”

*George W. Bush
President of the United States
In a Speech to The Corps of Cadets*

“The mission of The Citadel is to prepare citizen-soldiers, a concept that dates back to Cincinnatus. Since 1842, The Citadel has produced citizen-soldiers who have served gallantly in peace and war. Service is a way of life for Citadel graduates.”

*Steven E. Buyer
U.S. House of Representatives, Indiana
