

ALUMNI WHO DARE TO LEAD

THE CITADEL

Since 1842, The Citadel Alumni have had a proud tradition of public service and entrepreneurial success. New graduates take their place each year beside the countless others that preceded them to make their mark in their respective fields. On average, a third will enter the Armed Forces. An almost equal number will pursue graduate and professional studies while the remainder will enter directly into the work force.

Using the time management, leadership, and academic skills learned as members of the Corps of Cadets, our Alumni fill the ranks of private businesses at all levels, from entry level sales to CEO. Many have been equally successful in the area of public service, be it the military or government, and have become U.S. Senators and U.S. Representatives, state legislators, mayors, as well as generals and admirals. Those who have moved on to graduate school have succeeded in their professions and become experts in their fields.

Our Alumni are goal-oriented, well-educated, and successful; exactly the type of college graduates the business and military worlds want to hire. As a graduate, you will be part of that tradition - a tradition of success regardless of your chosen profession.

“Citadel graduates have become successful leaders in both the public and the private sectors, as well as having been involved in every American military conflict since the Mexican war. Thanks to its effective teaching techniques, The Citadel has earned an enviable reputation as one of the best public colleges in the United States, and there is not a better military school anywhere in this Nation than The Citadel.”

*Robert Dole
Former U.S. Senator*